

Office 2007 to become available to University January 2009

Texas Wesleyan's IT department is pleased to announce that Microsoft's Office 2007 software suite will become available to university employees for use on office computers beginning January 2007.

The new Office suite is currently being tested in University Computer Labs and on select faculty and staff computers. Training on common software applications (Word, PowerPoint, Excel, and Outlook 2007) will be available beginning Fall 2008. Look for training announcements and dates from the Center for Excellence in Teaching and Learning.

For more information about the suite, contact the Technology Help Desk (helpdesk@txwes.edu).